The following poem by Millie Galusha is considered suitable for publication in Scientology publications.

A Scientology Incident in Verse on
My Friend Mr. Jefferson

I was a doctor and
This man Jefferson was My patient, and my Good Friend.
Many hours we spent chatting
About things not spoken about Ordinarily
In those times.

His wife Martha was a
Good Woman
But she knew not of Other Lives and other Things not discussed
In those times.

In his Drawing Room
He showed me Inventions Far advanced for Those times.

He was a very intelligent
Man.
He was admired by many
but understood by few
In those times.

In 1826 he became
Ill
And it fell my lot to Try and save his Life.
Medicines were not adequate
And I did not know of Scientology
In those times.

I did what I could for the man
Thomas Jefferson,
with whom I could best Communicate
In those times.

I could not bear
his passing
too well.
I went into the nearby
Woods
And I did weep
For I had lost the best Friend I had
In those times.

Footnote:
Here in 1959 I remembered
Mr. Jefferson and what did occur
In those times.
And I wept again as I had done
Then.
I did remember, I did
Cry, and I
Changed my mind about who I did Fail.
I know of Scientology
In these times. I hope
Mr. Jefferson does,
Too.

Poem by Kathy Talent

The following poem by Kathy Talent, staff member in Washington, D.C., is suitable for publication in Scientology magazines.

Ode to Time

Oh, unrelenting host -
You reaper of man's gains -
Proceeding ever onward -

Empire's crumble
Bodies decay
Because of you
Oh Time - Thou keeper of Engrams

You who would soothe our loss
Which we through clinging did experience -
And help us to forget -
Oh Thanks!

I would seek to capture you -
My friend

To re-possess my
lovers, my enemies,
my mest -
Now what do you think of that?

Magazine Article

The following poems by Julian Cooper are considered suitable for publication in Scientology Publications:-

Derision in the Teeth of the Mest Universe.

Shall we say
Of course, merely as an analogy
That the MEST universe is a sort of huge joke.

Shall we say
Of course, merely as an analogy
That up to now the joke has been mostly at our expense.

Shall we say
Of course, merely as an analogy
That it makes a nice change to be able to laugh back.

Modern Science

Discovering what happens when you pass a million volt Spark through vapourised Coca-Cola.

Or research into the degree of insanity that can be achieved
By injections of radioactive shaving-cream.

Or experimenting with the lethal possibilities
Of electron-bombarded toothpaste.

Julian Cooper.
