Run lots of "What question shouldn't I ask you?" and get them all off.
Find and solve all FTPs with O/W on the terminals involved.
Lots of O/W in general.

Lots of discussion about failed help. Have pc check over many, many help failures.

Then check for havingness process for havingness process.

Here are some good tips:

"Look around here and find something you can have " always work on any pc if the rudiment are done, done thoroughly.

New Experimental Havingness Processes:

- "Look around here and find something you don't have to make duplicate you "
- "Feel that (indicated object)."
- "How could you have that (indicate room object)?"
- "How could that (indicated room object) make somebody guilty?"
- "Notice that (room object) How long are you absolutely sure it will be there?"
- "What problem could that wall be?"

Confront Processes:

- "What unworkable situation could you confront?"
- "What unworkable situation would you rather not confront?"
.....
- "What sexual activity could you confront?"
- "What sexual activity would you rather not confront?"
.....
- "What sound (or other perception) could you confront?"
- "What sound (other perception) would you rather not confront?"
- "Think of a problem."
